PRINCIPAL JOHNSON LEADS WHS THROUGH YEAR OF TRANSITION

Wayzata Senior High School's successful evolution continued under the capable direction of Principal Roald H. Johnson. Mr. Johnson's duties were more demanding than ever as a result of Mr. Horning's surprise resignation and the construction work that continued from September through May.

Despite these handicaps, Mr. Johnson inaugurated several curriculum changes, handled classroom discipline problems, employed seven new staff members, and mastered the multiplicity of problems resulting from scheduling and budgeting.

The opening of the new Humanities Wing with 16 classrooms and its unique carpeted study areas was a highlight of the 1965-66 school year. All English and social studies classrooms are now located in this section of the building.

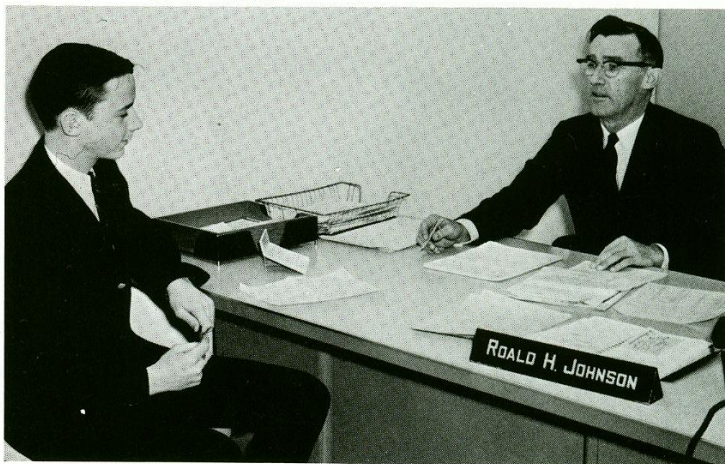

The art department moved into spacious new quarters that provided three separate teaching stations. The impressive facilities reflected the creative talents of Mr. Guel Dostal, Art Department Chairman, and were immediately utilized by his students.

Mr. Chillstrom and Mr. Manning shared some of the duties of the departed Assistant Principal Mr. Horning, who accepted a principalship in Denver.

Mr. Johnson took time from his busy schedule to pose for the Wayako photographer in the Humanities Wing which would never be empty again.
